MOTHER AND THREE CHILDREN

SMALL BOY AND TWO LITTLE GIRLS AMONG VICTIMS OF MURDERER

Westchester, Pa., Sept. 20.—Mrs. John Zoos and her three children, a boy, aged 7 year, and two girls, aged 7 months and 3 years, were murdered late this afternoon at Byers, a small town about ten miles from this place. Suspicion points to a boarder who has disappeared, but who the police are making desperate efforts to find. The husband and father was the first to discover the horrible crime. While on his way home from the Plumbage Mines, where he is employed, Zoos saw the body of his 7-year-old son lying in the bushes alongside the roadway. Upon investigation he found that the child had been terribly beaten about the head and was unconscious. The districted father took the child in his arms and rushed to his home, a short distance away. Here a terrible sight met his gaze. Lying on the floor of the little kitchen were the bodies of his two little girls and his wife, the latter still breathing, but with her brains oozing from a great fracture of the skull. The almost frantic father and the fellow in such a condition that husband rushed from the house and gave the alarm. A physician was quickly summoned but a glance told that there was no hope for the wife.

Attention was then turned to the wounded boy. He was placed in an automobile and a quick run was ordered for the Phoenixville hospital, a distance of eight miles, but just as the automobile was in sight of the hospital, the little fellow breathed his last.

It was evident that the murderer had gone to the Zoos home for the purpose of robbery, and the fact that the three persons in the dwelling were disposed of the brutal burglar would seem to be the theory of the police that the robber was familiar with the Zoos and murdered the family upon being recognized.

At the time when the woman and little girls were murdered, the boy was at school. It is supposed he met the slayer of his mother and two sisters when a short distance from home, and the murderer, knowing that the child would recognize him and give a clue to the authorities, he placed the little he could not be of any assistance to the police officials.

The weapon used by the murderer was an axe, the pole of which was covered with blood and brains from the mother and children.

The house had been ransacked and $45, which Zoos claims to have had in his home, is missing.

PHYSICIAN KILLED BY HIS PATIENT

SLAYER THEN TURNS PISTOL ON HIMSELF AND SENDS BULLET IN HEAD

Atlanta, Ga., September 21.—As Dr. J. Robert Sewell was in the act of closing himself in his operating room with William M. Cox, a patient from Austell, Ga., yesterday, Cox sent a bullet crashing through the physician's brain and then attempted suicide by shooting himself in the head.

Dr. Sewell was instantly killed. His slayer, whose motive for the crime the police have been unable to find, is at the Grady hospital with only a fractured skull and will recover.

A coroner's jury ordered him held for investigation by the grand jury, and his arrest will be made as soon as he has sufficiently recovered.

Occurs in Office

The tragedy occurred shortly after 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in Dr. Sewell's office at 106 12 Whitehall street. Dr. Sewell lived at 151 Richardson street and was a native of Carrollton, Ga. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Amye Robinson, of Carrollton, and six children by his first wife. He was 49 years of age. Cox is 36 years of age and single.

He has been a chronic sufferer from a physical ailment for years, and was being treated by Dr. Sewell. The police advance the theory that Cox was temporarily insane over his failure to be benefited by Dr. Sewell.

The bullet that Cox intended for his self-destruction entered the right side of the head a few inches back of the ear. The bullet merely splintered the bone and did not injure the brain.

Cox has recovered from the shock and is conscious at the hospital. Not one word has he spoken since the tragedy, although attending physicians have made every effort to get a statement from him.

Dr. Sewell and Dr. Cox were the only persons in the room at the time. W. A. Shore, of Baldwin, Ga., had left Dr. Sewell only a few seconds and met Cox coming in the office.

As shore was walking down the stairs, two shots rang out in quick succession. Rushing back up the stairs and in company with six physicians who have offices in the same floor, they found Dr. Sewell lying dead on the floor of the operating room, his feet almost in the entrance.

Lying prostrate on the floor beyond Dr. Sewell, with his feet pointing to the physician's body, and his head under an operating table, was the patient, Cox, blood spouting from a hole in his head.

IN BED WITH WIFE FARMER IS SLAIN

SHIRLEY'S HEAD CRUSHED BY THE UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

Clayton, Ga., September 20.—Moses L. Shirley, a prominent and well to do farmer, living about a mile and a half south of Clayton, was assassinated at his home last night while in bed by an unknown assailant, who struck him with an ax.

Mrs. Shirley, who was sleeping with her husband, was awakened by the blow. The assassin drew back his weapon and hurled it at Mrs. Shirley. The blow missed her, however, the ax going almost through the bed.

The assassin made his escape. Some four or five years ago Shirley was arrested and placed in jail at this place on the charge of shooting his wife. After serving some time he was released on his wife's testimony who exonerated him completely from firing the shot that entered her jaw bone. She lingered between life and death for a long while, but finally recovered, though the wound inflicted left her maimed for life, with practically no use of the injured parts.

Church Social As A Debt-Lifter.

You know if the national debt is ever paid it will have to be done by the church social plan. There is no plan that will beat this for raising money.

As an illustration, we get an item from the New York Sun that brings to mind the way the world raises money. The church social, the bazaar, ice cream feeds, are the same the world over.

Hear this from Gotham:

"The regular weekly meeting of the social committee of the College Baptist Church of the Convent, will be held on Monday evening. A supper will be served in the church parlors at 7 o'clock and afterward an open parliament for the discussion of the Scripture lesson will be held under the leadership of Dr. Haygood."

How's that for a city with more people than the states of Alabama and Georgia? Sounds like here in Dothan, doesn't it.

You see they have their money to raise. They have their church debts, and they have their plans—the plan, we should say. Did they borrow it from us, or we from them?

From the residents of Dothan we could select women who could devise means and ways of raising money to take up the bonded indebtedness of the city, finish paying the streets, and beautifying them; pay outstanding obligations to the church, and keep a colony of missionaries in the foreign field.

As soon as the census figures are all in, we shall ask the Department of Statistics at Washington to run up a few columns of figures to see what the city of Dothan's part in the national debt is. We believe that we can put a plan on foot that will give this town more advertising than any town in the country, by paying our part—it won't be much.

That Confederate Monument

From time to time something is said about erecting a monument to the Confederate soldiers who went from this section to the war. But talk is all, so far. Nothing has been done. No committee has been appointed, for no head to the movement has been created.

All it takes to raise a fund to erect a handsome monument is to get the right people out to hustling. These people—the right ones—may be busy, so busy till they cannot lay down their work and take up the job, but they will find time to devote to it later.

There is a suitable place to erect it on the grounds at the court house.

The old soldiers are passing along rapidly now. They will not be here but a few more years, and the children should do something now to commemorate the services rendered so faithfully years ago. Then we haven't erected a piece of stone to the memory of anything, or anybody, so far. We've put up a few pieces, but they were in buildings for a purpose. We ought to be getting old enough to have a town to devote some time and money to mark the valorous deeds of our people at different periods of our history.

We think the only plan to fall upon is to ask the Daughters of the Confederacy to take the matter in charge. They will do something.

The Time to Laugh

There is many a slip between the cup and the lip, and similar words could be put into effect about people who think they are going to marry.

The other day a couple in Taunton, Mass., got in the notion to marry, both at the same time. They pulled for the office where the proper papers might be issued. When the clerk was folding up the license, the woman, who was a giggler, giggled a little. She was pleased at the bright prospects of an early marriage, no doubt, and the man was one of those grumpy kind. He looked sour, and told the woman who was about to become his wife that if she laughed again, she'd be sorry. She took the dare and giggled. He calmly handed back the license to the clerk and asked him for his $1.50, and said that there wouldn't be any marriage that day, nor the next day, and so far as that woman was concerned, he would never marry her. She cried, and owned up that she was sorry, but he was a flint-hearted sort of a cuss and didn't give in.

But she had nothing to laugh at.

Might Have Played Rotten Ball

A young Kentucky preacher has lost his job preaching because he played baseball, but we are not informed if he played well enough to be signed by one of the leagues. The congregation, or members of his church got up a petition asking him to resign, while the ball fans got up one asking him to stand by his base.

We don't know, but we are afraid that he played such rotten ball till they wouldn't stand for it. His playing might have been hurting the church. We think that if a preacher plays ball, that he ought to be a cracking good player and in demand.

The press dispatches are strangely silent as to the ability of this minister, but we suppose that he liked the sport, and could bat some hot liners, else the local team wouldn't have put up with him.

When They Are Finished

One consolation that is worth something to the residents of Dothan, when we get the streets in shape this time, there will be little doing toward disturbing them for some time. The sewer and water pipes have been laid going to all buildings, or vacant lots where buildings will likely be erected.

It is not within the memory of any Dothanite when the streets were open, sidewalks and all, from one end of the town to the other. That is the very thing that has built the town, in fact, and seeing the work going on means more improvements.

When this paving is put down, and the travel is turned loose on the streets, we are afraid that the telephone people will have much trouble; for people cannot bear so well then. The travel along the streets will be a sight, so far as noise goes.

The other day a man up in Pennsylvania went down and bought one of the newest, reddest and latest automobiles. He took a turn at the wheel a few times, and learned to crank it and foot the horn, then he hunted up some perfectly innocent and foolish young people and invited them to help him give his new car a try-out. He got on a good stretch of road, and leaned forward and told them to watch him eat up the road. He got it going all right, and then caught a case of cold feet. The car got away from him, and he couldn't remember to save his life what one must do to stop it. The car ran into a telegraph pole, and killed a couple of the young people, and the others are in the hospital.

Oughtn't to Do It

Alb Hummel, the New York lawyer who was debarred and sent to the penitentiary, is about through with his work for the state. Now that he is on the outside again, he threatens to write a book, and tell of some of the prominent cases he has had charge of. He probably will go into the divorce cases, for it was in these that he was so well known. He was a sort of society divorce lawyer, and has quite a distinguished list when he has prized apart.

Alb oughtn't to go behind the scenes now and tell things out of the profession, unless he is absolutely in need of the hush money he expects to pick up.

The legislature of Kentucky might appropriate a fixed sum of money to be used each year if necessary, to keep statues of Henry Clay in shape. In 1903 a beautiful and costly statue was struck by lightning and ruined, and this summer another had been erected and unveiled. Just this week, lightning struck it and knocked off one of Henry's arms, and just about demolished the figure. The legislature had stood for part of the cost of $12,000, and we suggest that it set aside a fund for the purpose, or else have the next one worked on by a lightning rod agent.

We knew that there was a strong sentiment against the noise made by the exhaust from the oil mill gas engine, but didn't know when we wrote the article for yesterday's paper that the people of the vicinity had already presented a petition to the council Monday night, asking that this nuisance be suppressed. Don't know what action the council took on the matter, but we feel sure that the body will advise that the mill put a muffler on that exhaust pipe, a thing that was intended, and a thing that is used on gas engines.

Churches and Saloons

In New York there is a law that prohibits a saloon from being conducted within 200 feet of a church.

There are two saloon men in the Bronx who wanted to put each other out of business. One built a little church on the lot he had, near his rival's saloon, which closes it. The other says he will build a church in 200 feet of his rival's place. It looks now that the people of the Bronx may have more churches than saloons.

This is a new way of getting saloon keepers interested in church building.

There are more business men pulling the load for the city this fall than we have had before. At all times we have had men who let the other fellow carry the load, and do the work boosting up the crowd, but that class is dwindling out year by year, and more up-to-date methods are introduced by more up-to-date merchants and business men.

If you will look over the droves of school children you see going and coming from school, you will see that you don't know hardly half of them. Many of them are coming here from the surrounding country, and from other towns, and some of them are the children of people who have recently moved to Dothan to send their children to school.

Chicago grew all right, but not in so great a proportion as did New York. This is probably due to the fact that when one lives in Chicago long enough to stand it, that he moved along to New York. Chicago is merely a training station for the city dwellers.

If there is a thing in the world in appearances and talk, Montgomery ought to have one of the best agricultural fairs this fall it has ever had. The city seems to have gone about it in the right kind of spirit. We hope that she doesn't overlook the importance of Wright's airship, for if that day is featured, many people will go for that alone.

The city of Montgomery has fallen in line by favoring the commission form of government so strong till it really doesn't seem that there is any opposition. It will be only a question of a few years, when one will find but few cities managed by the old ward politician plan, which offers so many ways of keeping the city from being well governed.

Few commercial travelers of the country make the mileage during the year that President Taft does. That man stayed in Beverly longer during the summer than he has stayed in any one place it seems, since he was elected.

Visitors to Dothan are continually remarking what excellent stocks of goods the merchants are carrying. Many of them are carrying stocks the like of which is seen in but few cities.

Kermit Roosevelt is about due in New York. You know he didn't show up with his father this spring, but he is coming over to see what his father has done to this side since his arrival.

Gaynor says the time is at hand when these journalistic scoundrels must be attended to, and he proposes to look after some. Of course he means the New York journalists.

It is the easiest thing you know now to come to Dothan, and if you think you want anything, you will soon find what you want in Dothan at the right price.

Roosevelt has threatened the regulars. They threatened him, too, but it came to nothing.

Prejudice Against Glasses

Many persons are prejudiced against the wearing of glasses and sometimes positively decline to use them even when they are imperatively needed. They may be sensible persons and display good judgment in other matters, but in this one respect they act most foolishly and without any reason. A contest with nature is hopeless, and it is the part of wisdom to yield gracefully to the first summons to surrender.

GRANT'S STORE ENTERED BY BURGLARS LAST NIGHT

Some time during last night, the back door of the Grant Clothing Company's store was entered by unknown burglars, and their intentions were evidently robbery, though nothing has yet been missed by the clothing men.

The back door was pried with a pick and the bar lifted. The door was found open this morning, and a careful search was made, but the amount of goods taken by them, if any, could not be ascertained, nor could they find any trail of the looters.

Blood hounds were put upon the trail, but it had grown old, and the hounds were unable to track the trespassers.

Nervous Women

For nervous, tired women, we recommend Cardui. Cardui is a woman's medicine. It acts specifically on the female organs and has a tonic, building effect on the whole system. It contains no harmful ingredients, being a pure vegetable extract. If you suffer from some form of female trouble, get Cardui at once and give it a fair trial.

TAKE CARDUI

It Will Help You

Mrs. W. W. Gardner, of Paducah, Ky., tried Cardui and writes: "I think Cardui is just grand. I have been using it for eleven years. I am 48 years old and feel like a different woman, since I have been taking it. I used to suffer from bearing down pains, nervousness and sleeplessness, but now the pains are all gone and I sleep good. I highly recommend Cardui for young and old." Try it.

THE MEASURE OF WAGES

The real measure of wages is not in their size, but their purchasing power.

When a dollar a day will provide the family with its daily needs and leave a balance against a rainy day and old age, a dollar a day is good wages.

When three dollars a day will not suffice to meet the pressing needs of the family, when prices are so high that this sum will keep the worker's family in decent comfort, then three dollars a day is poor wages.

Wages have increased in this country since 1896, but the cost of living has increased so much faster, thanks to the tariff taxes and the greed of monopolies, that wages that would have looked large fourteen years ago are really inadequate today.

Plenty of people overlook this important fact that the measure of wages is not their amount, but their purchasing power. A dollar that will buy only four pounds of meat is not so good a dollar as that which will buy six pounds of meat.

This is illustrated vividly by an article in the September McClure's magazine, in which Dr. Henry Smith Williams shows, among other things, that there was a time when eight cents a day was good wages.

Says he: "There was a time when a workman in England received eight cents a day for ordinary wage, when skilled artisans commanded twelve cents a day, and when women worked in the fields at such tasks as reaping straws, hoeing, planting beans and washing sheep for two cents a day and a wise student of the subject has expressed the opinion that the British workman of that day was better off than he has ever been since."

"That sounds paradoxical. But the explanation is this: The workman who sold his services for eight cents a day could buy good beef or mutton for one and a half cents a pound; wheat cost him on the average, only eighteen cents a bushel. He could get board for from twelve to sixteen cents a week. The pay he would receive for fifteen weeks' service, would suffice to purchase a supply of foodstuffs, according to the standard of his time, (consisting of wheat, malt and oatmeal) to furnish his family for a lifetime year."

"Under these circumstances, eight cents a day—increased to twelve cents during harvest time—was a fair wage and 'times were good' for the average workman."

It is a good deal of a nuisance, in a way to have wages expressed in terms of money. Money is such a fluctuating commodity that a day's wages may be satisfactory one year and may be wholly inadequate another year. If there were some way of expressing payment for labor in terms of the necessities of life, it would be much simpler. One's idea of a dollar is likely to be that of a stationary, fixed value, no matter whether its purchasing power is great or small. Yet it is clear that a dollar that will buy only four pounds of meat is a smaller dollar than that which buys six pounds, and that what may be good wages in times of low prices becomes poor wages when the advance in prices outstrips the advance in pay.—Duluth Herald.

HIS GOLF OUTFIT.

He Didn't Drink Tea, So His Wife Didn't Get a Caddy.

She was in the sporting goods department of a universal provider looking for her husband's birthday present. She had it vaguely in her mind to get him some golf clubs, although the man never had played the game or even expressed a desire to play. He needed more exercise, and she wanted a present that would lure him on to take it.

A young clerk sought her custom. "Something in tennis rackets, madam?" he asked.

"No; I want some golf clubs."

"Yes, madam. Right over here. For yourself?"

"No; for my husband. I don't want a whole set. He never has played before," she explained.

"Then you want a beginner's outfit—a driver, brassy, putter and either a mashie or a midiron will do to start," the young man went on drawing from the stand a long handled club and flourishing it before the woman.

"Is that a driver?"

"Yes. You see, madam, first you make your tee"—

"But he doesn't drink tea," she interrupted.

The clerk opened his eyes and would have laughed but for the thought of the sale he was about to make. Instead he explained tactfully what a tee was and seemed not to see the flush of chagrin that mounted to the rather pretty little woman's face.

"We haven't even a course," she explained, "but I thought he could bat the balls around the place to begin—to get a fancy for the game."

"Then it's a brassie, not a driver, that you want. Now, here is one with a good shaft—it's all in the shaft. I used to be a professional on"—

"And what else do I need?" the woman interrupted.

"I would suggest a midiron. You don't need a putter if you have no greens. Here is a good one—$2."

"All right. I'll take those two. And how about a caddy? I suppose if we have no tees we don't need a caddy—is that it? But at least I'd like to see what one looks like, so that for his birthday I can get a bag and a caddy and a couple more clubs to complete the outfit."—New York Press.

Gladstone and Tobacco.

One of the few accomplishments which Gladstone never acquired was the art of smoking. His few attempts in this direction are reported to have been dismal failures. Only once was he known to try a cigarette, the occasion being one evening when King Edward, then Prince of Wales, was his guest at Downing street. After dinner the prince desired to smoke, and Gladstone, with fine courtesy, sought to place his guest at ease by at least lighting a cigarette. In later years the "grand old man" one day accused his secretary of smelling of the weed. "No wonder," was the reply. "I've been over half an hour with Sir William Harcourt." "What! Does Harcourt smoke?" exclaimed Gladstone. "You must tell him to be careful always to change his clothes before he comes to me!" — Westminster Gazette.

Long Distance Horseback Riding.

One of the most remarkable accomplishments in long distance horseback riding was in the early part of the last century when Squire Obaldistone, at Newmarket, England, on a wager of $5,000, was to ride 200 miles within ten hours. The horses were changed at the end of the four mile circuit, some of them being ridden two or three times, and one, Franby, was brought out for a fourth mount. The squire had to mount and remount each horse from the ground, not using a mounting block, so losing time and taking more strain. In spite of this and the ground not being in good condition, the 200 miles were covered in eight hours and thirty-nine minutes. About thirty horses were

REMAINS OF JOE KING BURIED AT ASHFORD

The remains of Joe King, who was killed near Birmingham several months ago by unknown parties, passed through Dothan today on the Coast Line railroad, and will be buried this afternoon at Ebenezer church, ten miles below Ashford.

Mr. King disappeared from his home one morning, and a few days ago his skeleton was found in the woods near his home, seven months after his disappearance. The bones of the mule which he rode the day he disappeared while on his way home from town, were also found. The mule was tied near the body and it is thought it died of starvation.

Relatives of the deceased living in Dothan, advance the theory that King was shot from his mule, and that he ran into the bushes and tied the animal, expecting to ride him home when his assailants left, and that he bled to death before he was able to remount.

The coroner held an inquest and suspicion rests upon several people, two of them having already been placed under arrest.

Mr. King was a brother of Mrs. W. R. Deal, of Dothan, and she left this morning for Ashford, where she will go through the country to attend the funeral at Ebenezer church this afternoon.

Miss Robbie Ghent has gone to Marianna, where she will teach music this winter.

PRONAGE THREAT STOPS CONTRACTOR

Macon, Ga., September 21.—Threatened with prosecution for alleged pronage, J. W. Hilliard, a contractor on the big power dam at Lloyd Shoals for the Central Georgia Power Company, was today frustrated in his efforts to stop a man giving the name of S. L. Harper and two negroes, John Andrews and John Rose, in Macon upon warrants charging that the three men were violating the state laws in enticing labor away from the works at the dam into the state of Alabama.

Hilliard came to Macon with warrants for the two negroes and the man named Harper, but on account of failure to make affidavit as to errors corrected in the warrant for Harper, he could not have the warrant served on the white man.

Harper, seeing the predicament he was about to reach, sought the protection of the United States' attorney's office and no arrest was made. Hilliard in the meantime, made arrangements to return to Butts county and have a proper warrant made. He declared he would give a reward of $200 rather than lose the man who had been after his labor, according to warrants brought. Both Harper and the negroes were headed for Birmingham, according to Harper.
